

Sharing your password could mean sharing your finances.

Share your ideas, share your music, share your photographs, but don't share your password.

Revealing your trading password to anyone is an open invitation for misuse.

Trades may be made on your behalf without your knowledge. And when you do get to know about it, it may be too late.

Do remember to change your password periodically, especially if you access your account from cyber cafes or public computers.